In January of 2013, the Barbero family welcomed their second son, Dilon, into the world. He was born with Klippel-Feil syndrome—a bone disorder characterized by the abnormal joining of two or more spinal bones in the neck. After further evaluation, doctors discovered that Dilon also had two congenital heart defects, caused by Klippel-Feil syndrome. Valarie, his mother, described the whole situation as feeling like she was having a bad dream. Then, in September of 2015, the Barberos’ bad dream quickly turned into a nightmare. During a cardiac catheterization procedure to treat Dilon’s congenital heart defects, he had a spinal cord stroke and eight restricted brain diffusions, which caused paralysis from the waist down and speech loss. The Barbero family was devastated.

“The doctors at our local children’s hospital told us that Dilon would not walk, or talk again,” says Valarie, “but I wasn’t about to accept that as my son’s fate.” Valarie and Adrian, Dilon’s father, sought out intense physical and speech therapy to help improve their son’s well-being. Just two months after his injury, Dilon spoke his first word—“who”—after hearing his favorite song “Who Let the Dogs Out?” and after arriving home from their appointment, other words quickly followed. So quickly, in fact, that Valarie could not keep up with writing all of the words down. This amazing turn of events gave the family hope that Dilon would recover, and that anything was possible. Valarie’s persistence in finding a way to help her son not just verbally, but physically too, led her to Shriners Hospitals for Children in Philadelphia. “We knew we had to travel far from our home in New Mexico to Philadelphia, to get our son back,” says Valarie. Although coming to Philadelphia was what the Barbero family needed to do, they were challenged with where they would stay, and how they would afford it. “That’s when we learned about the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House and the services it provides to families like ours,” says Valarie. “And because of the House, I was able to focus on the most important thing of all—getting my son back.”

In May of 2016, the Barbero family checked into the House at Front & Erie for the first time, and after two days of therapy at Shriners Hospital, Dilon was in braces learning to walk again. Exactly eight months after his injury, Dilon took his first steps. The Barbero family has stayed at the House two times since Dilon’s treatment started, and will return again. Staying at the House has allowed Valarie’s sister, Melissa, to stay and offer support to Valarie during Dilon’s treatments. Adrian and the Barbero’s other 10-year-old son, Devlen, are unable to travel with Valarie and Dilon because of work and school. “My husband and son find comfort in knowing we have a place to stay that is safe,” shared Valarie.

Regarding her experience staying at the House, Valarie says, “The volunteers and staff show so much love and compassion towards us and all of the families at the House. It is so therapeutic to speak with other parents and families who are staying here. In fact, when we arrived, Dilon pointed out that there were other children in wheelchairs, just like him. Dilon has made life-long friends at the House, and so have I.”
As we approach the end of summer, I must first thank those who helped run the 31st annual Ronald McDonald Camp, which this year had a record attendance of 245 campers. This weeklong camp has always been one of the highlights for the children and their families, and this year was no exception. My sincere thanks and appreciation go to all the camp counselors, staff, and volunteers who give so much love to provide an exceptional experience for all the children. I would also like to thank our sponsors and donors who make all of this possible.

Unfortunately, the end of summer also leads to an increase in the demand for our services, and we continue to turn away far too many families in need because we don’t have a sufficient number of rooms to accommodate them. In addition, Philadelphia has some of the greatest hospitals in the country, which results in an ever-increasing requests for rooms at our Houses on Chestnut Street and Front & Erie. We continue to explore ways to increase the number of rooms so we can support more families, but we are in critical need of additional funding to make our expansion dream a reality. At the same time, we need annual funding to sustain our existing programs, so that we can continue to provide our services to families. If you or anyone you know has the capacity to give to any of our funding needs or would like to explore ways on how to help the House, please contact either Susan Campbell at susan@philarmh.org or Lawrence Jacobson at lawrence@philarmh.org.

Over the next few months we have a couple of great events, including the Show Your Stripes campaign and the annual House Lighting. We will also host our first annual Champions of Hope Awards dinner on October 6th at the Union League. That night, we will highlight the legacies of Dr. Audrey Evans and Jimmy Murray, the co-founders of the first Ronald McDonald House in Philadelphia, and we will honor Dr. Scott H. Kozin and Suzanne Root, Esq., two individuals who have had a significant impact on the care and well-being of children through their work and community involvement. We are delighted that former Philadelphia Eagles Head Coach, Dick Vermeil, will be our Special Guest.

Let me close by again thanking all of the staff, volunteers, board members, and donors who do so much to make all of this happen. We are very fortunate to receive the support of so many who regularly give their hearts and souls to this organization and, more importantly, to the children and their families who depend so much on what we provide.

With sincere thanks and appreciation,

Peter J. Degnan
Board President

The Weiss family recently shared their story with us:

Just six days after their 3-year-old daughter, Hayden, was diagnosed with retinoblastoma, she had to have her eye removed, and the family spent the next four months at CHOP getting radiation treatments. They took advantage of the Family Room at CHOP during that difficult time.

“We are so thankful for the meals that foundations and families have donated to us during our stay,” said Helen Weiss. “It was usually either my husband or me in the room alone with Hayden. It was hard for us to run down to the cafeteria even for 10 minutes as it seems every time we left the room, we would come back to find her out of bed trying to use the portable potty and tangled up in four IV lines. Being able to run down the hall and grab a meal was such a big help to keep us fueled. We can’t be more grateful for all the donations and volunteers!”

If your company would like to become an Adopt A Family Room sponsor, please contact Chris Callanan at chris@philarmh.org.

The Ronald McDonald Oncology Family Room

at CHOP turns 10!

We’re happy and proud to be celebrating 10 years of providing comfort to families at The Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia Oncology Unit through the Ronald McDonald Family Room. Families with hospitalized children spend day after day at their child’s bedside, trying to make a very scary time a little less frightening. The Family Room extends the support of our two Ronald McDonald Houses into the hospital by offering a quiet, comfortable respite place for families to rest and regroup during their child’s treatment—helping them to reduce stress and focus on their own health and well-being while they take care of their child.
We’re excited that Ryan Arcidiacono, NCAA 2016 Final Four Most Outstanding Player, has become an Ambassador for the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House to help promote the work it does to serve families with seriously ill children. Arcidiacono, now a professional basketball player, graduated from Neshaminy High School, which is also a strong supporter of the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House’s mission and programs.

RYAN ARCIDIACONO BECOMES PRMH AMBASSADOR

For the third year in a row, we are hosting the Show Your Stripes campaign.

Started in 2014 in celebration of our 40th birthday as the world’s first Ronald McDonald House, this campaign was a tremendous success—garnering support from corporations, businesses, schools, organizations, civic groups, and professional sports teams across the greater Philadelphia region.

We encourage supporters to purchase a pair of our now-famous red and white striped socks or any of our new striped merchandise: ties, hats, scarves, and more! Wear them leading up to and on our birthday celebration on October 14, 2016.

Wear your striped gear with pride and tag @PhilaRMH on social media in your best photo using the hashtags #ShowYourStripes and #MyPRMH or email your photos to Thomas Servello at tservello@philarmh.org for a chance to be featured on our social media accounts.

Every night at the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House, families find comfort and hope through the most difficult time in their lives. Not having to worry about where they will spend the night while their child undergoes treatment at one of Philadelphia’s hospitals is just the beginning. The House’s dedicated staff and volunteers live to help, and you’ll find them eagerly driving vans to take families to appointments, preparing meals, and offering compassion.

Brenna Denney, a mother whose triplets are receiving treatment at The Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia, describes the House this way: “I love it—absolutely love it. It is my home for now, and I am comfortable with that. When I am ready to leave the hospital, I say ‘I am going home now’. It feels natural, instead of saying ‘I am going to the hotel’ or wherever else.” One of the largest sources of comfort that Brenna has found is the company of other mothers who understand what she’s going through.

“It’s a community,” says Brenna about the House. “One woman has become a very, very good friend of mine. She is an expectant mother, who I am actually going to miss dearly. I know I am going to keep in contact with her for a very long time. I’ve formed relationships with a few other women who have kids in the neonatal intensive care unit right next to ours, so we reassure each other. Just last night we made a couple of friends while doing laundry, even though their child has a completely different illness,” she says.

Before her children were born, Brenna’s specialist in Athens, Georgia alerted her and her husband that identical twins in the womb could have Twin to Twin Transfusion Syndrome, a very serious complication in which the twin fetuses share a placenta and one takes nutrients away from the other. The specialist urged them to go to The Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP) for testing. However, choosing to have tests, procedures, and monitoring done at CHOP meant that Brenna would have to stay in Philadelphia for at least three months, requiring the Denneys to find a place to stay—and it would not be easy to afford to stay at a hotel for such a long period of time. Thanks to generous donors like you, the House can provide Brenna a place to stay without having to worry about the cost, and a community of support that she would not be able to find at a hotel.

As you plan your holiday giving, think of families like the Denneys, who are able to keep their family together and find comfort and hope by staying at the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House.

BREAKFAST BUDDY

Thanks to the Philadelphia Chapter of the NFL Alumni for preparing a meal for PRMH guest families as a Breakfast Buddy during their 2016 Youth of America Week! They cooked a delicious, healthy breakfast so that families could wake up with one less worry. Through the Breakfast Buddy program, volunteer groups prepare, package, and stock the next morning’s healthy breakfast options for approximately 40 to 50 people at our Chestnut Street House.

If you are interested in becoming a Breakfast Buddy, contact Lori-Anne Miller at lori-anne@philarmh.org.

SPREADING JOY IN HONOR OF OTHERS

Thanks to everyone who has supported guest families at the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House this year in honor of their loved ones.

This Fall, we would like to highlight friends of the family of Brandon J. Luk, including the Boxer Family, Glenn Zeitzer, Donald Cola, Wendy Sparks, Molly Grimes, and Nicole McGarvey, who supported the 2016 Ronald McDonald Camp. Their contribution helped spread the joy of Brandon, a jovial child—who was a talented artist and passionate about basketball—to our campers, so that they could enjoy a week of fun and friendship, and just being kids.

PULL FOR THE KIDS

We are grateful to the team from H&R Block of Philadelphia, including Kenneth Bateman, District General Manager, and his mother, Kathleen Bateman, for helping families as Guest Chefs at the Chestnut Street House. Twenty-six years ago, Kenneth began participating in the program as a way of teaching his children the value of giving back. Throughout the years, his friends, family, and co-workers have joined in. He refers to his mother as the “Heart and Soul” of their participation, and notes that you can see her passion for interacting with the children that attend every meal, as her face lights up when talking about them. “We are all so grateful for the opportunity to serve the guests,” says Kenneth. “The joy of giving to others is replicated every visit, and we can’t wait for our next visit.”

We’re thankful to the over 100 participants in 26 teams who attended the second annual Mechanical & Service Contractors Association Sporting Clays Tournament at Lehigh Valley Sporting Clays. Together, they raised $12,000 to benefit the House.
On May 14, over 500 participants competed at the 8th Annual Plane Pull to see which team could pull an airplane in the fastest time. To be a part of the event, 25 teams—the most in the history of this event—raised at least $2,500 each to help support families of the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House. It was another successful event filled with tons of action, and the teams raised a combined total of $115,000. Congratulations to Comstar Supply, which pulled faster than all the other teams and took home the trophy. We would like to thank Atlantic Aviation, Philly Jet Service, MarketPlace PHL, All Event Party Rental, UPS, and all of the wonderful folks that helped make this event happen, including the highest fundraising team, Chickie’s and Pete’s.

Thanks to the numerous golf enthusiasts who hit the greens this past summer to raise funds for the House at various golf outings, including the Mike Missanelli Annual Golf Outing, the Richie Nelson Celebration of Life golf outing, the Audi quattro Cup, and the Hit ‘Em for the House Golf Outing.

Golfers at the Hit ‘Em for the House Golf Outing got to see the beautiful new vans that were generously donated to the house by Max Paul, owner of Ardmore Toyota and Central City Toyota. In 1985, Max Paul and his wife, Sandi began donating vans to the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House, so that families could be transported to local hospitals at no cost. Without a car, parents face many difficulties getting to appointments, especially with a sick outpatient child and other small children. If families do have cars, gas and parking expenses become burdensome, and cab fares also add up quickly. His generosity has proved to be invaluable to countless families who have stayed at the House.

We are grateful to Michael’s Way for donating funds that will allow us to provide a dedicated hotel room for families of oncology patients who we cannot accommodate at our Chestnut Street House because we are so full. Families staying at the hotel will still have full access to the amenities the House provides. If you are interested in helping with these special housing arrangements to serve more families, please contact Chris Callanan at Chris@philarmh.org.
I grew up in the Philadelphia suburb of Lower Merion. I attended George Washington University in Washington, DC, and after college I returned to Philadelphia and went to work in my family’s business. The company was called Penn Bottle and Supply Company, and we were in the packaging business—supplying packaging materials to the pharmaceutical, chemical, food, and many other industries. I worked there for 40 years, and was President and COO for 20 years prior to the sale of the company. My wonderful wife Beth, who spent 30 years in The School District of Philadelphia teaching and helping kids, comes to the House to tutor the children of the families we serve.

How did you come to know the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House?

Twenty years ago, Beth and I attended a fundraiser for the House. It was a silent auction, but more than that, the event showcased the mission of The Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House. I knew what the money raised would be used for and I was very proud to contribute. Throughout the years, I received quarterly newsletters and other PRMH communications in the mail, so it was always on my mind. About two and a half years ago, I found out that my friend Anne Scardino was a Board Member. When I told Anne that I wanted to learn more about the organization, she took me to the House and I met our Director of Volunteers, Linda Parry. That day I saw what our mission was, and I knew immediately that I wanted to be a part of it. I was hooked, and I’ve been volunteering ever since.

What interests you about the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House?

My interests are two-fold. First, I hope to see the House serve more families than we’re currently able to accommodate—an interest I share with fellow Board Members, dedicated staff, and volunteers. When a family calls, too often we are forced to say “We don’t have a room available tonight.” It is exciting to participate in a project that will ultimately allow us to always say “Yes, we have a room for you”.

My other interest is spending time at the House. Families may be with us for one night or for several months, but I believe we must do everything we can to make them feel at home. If I can get someone to laugh or smile, I know I’ve accomplished that. I enjoy helping around the House, and driving families to and from the hospital. I volunteer on Wednesday afternoons, with a wonderful group of devoted volunteers.

What has been your experience like serving on the board?

I was thrilled to join the board in 2015. Service on the Board of a non-profit is different from that of a business for profit. Taking care of our families comes first, and I’m certain that our other Board members would agree. I’ve enjoyed getting to know and to work with other people who share my desire to make our mission as strong and productive as it can be.

What are your hopes for the future of the Philadelphia Ronald McDonald House?

In the future, I hope that we can take care of all the families who ask to stay with us. That is our primary goal.
